DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 1 and 13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Dunne et al (US 2002/0143252).

Dunne et al discloses a scanning device comprising a movable member (22) supported for movement by a fixed member (housing); a magnetic element (26) mounted on the movable member; a stator element (16), a current coil (18) wound around a portion of the stator element; and a current driver for providing a current in the current element. As can be seen in Fig. 13, a radiation beam source for directing radiation beam onto the optical element (mirror) is provided. As to the bearings, See [0079] at page 5.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 11-12 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Dunne et al.

Dunne et al, as discussed above, fails to disclose a focusing lens in a path of the radiation beam and an electronic controller for modulating the amplitude or wavelength of the radiation source.

However, it is extremely well known in the art to use a focusing lens in the path of the radiation beam in order to focus the beam and reduce optical losses. Also, providing modulation electronics are well known to achieve control over the radiation emitted by the radiation source.

From available well known techniques, the ordinary artisan would have found it to be obvious at the time of the invention to provide a focusing lens in the path of the radiation beam and a modulation electronics for the radiation source in Dunne et al for the purpose of advantageously providing an efficient scanning device with optimum control.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 2-10 and 14-17 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Iino et al discloses a substantially claimed optical switch, however this reference is not available as prior art due to its publication date.

The prior art submitted by applicant has been considered. See attached copy of form PTO-1449.
